

Come enjoy our new interpretive signs.

The American Crow

This winter, the Arboretum Park Conservancy (APC) worked with Julie Warsowe, Manager of Visitor Education on the installation of five new signs along the Blackwell Footpath in the Bussey Brook Meadow. The APC applied to the Edward Ingersoll Browne Fund of the City of Boston and received a generous grant that paid for the fabrication and installation of these handsome black signs.

The signs display APC board member, Anne Schmalz's illustrations. Each season, the APC provides new information about plants, animals, birds and weather. The interpretive displays are part of the overall thematic framework of the Arnold Arboretum's Interpretive Master Plan and are consistent with the attractive new signs in the rest of the Arboretum.
